

Home

Survivors

Cosurvivors

Resources

Our tees

Other products

About us

Our story

Our values

Reader mail

blog

About Us ✦

Mission statement copy

MORE

Izzie, a breast cancer survivor hypnotically drawn to make-up and beauty counters, has a mad creative streak, a big vocabulary, and a tendency for parenthetical thought (guess who wrote this). She is the braniac, the idea factory, the “move over, Martha!” dreamer and catalyst for HAYVEN. A vet of careers in corporate communications and politics, Izzie is a literate survivor with deconstructed verbs and reconstructed breasts. She proves reading is sexy and so are survivors.

Due to a lifelong string of pets, eight siblings (yes, you read that right), a boatload of friends, two kids, and her rocker husband, during her entire life Mary has never been alone for more than 10 minutes. A ski resort employee manager with boundless energy and a blue-jeans lifestyle, Mary’s marital bliss was shattered in 2003 when her husband was diagnosed with stage IV cancer. Now that he’s recovered and it’s empty-nest time, Mary’s ready to come down from the mountain to encourage some of cancer’s most unsung heroes, the caregivers.

Steven blah blah clever blah

Jess blah blah clever blah

MORE about . . . our peeps ✦ our values ✦
✦ our story ✦ our readers ✦